

Featuring work from the research group of Thierry Savin,
University of Cambridge, UK.

Recent advances in the biomimicry of structural colours

The image depicts the structural colours arising from the helical arrangements of natural fibrils in the cell wall of some plants and beetles. Such organisation can be mimicked artificially using self-assembly.

As featured in:

See Ahu Gümrah Dumanli
and Thierry Savin,
Chem. Soc. Rev., 2016, 45, 6698.

www.rsc.org/chemsocrev

Registered charity number: 207890